ULTRON GLOBAL PEACEKEEPING INITIATIVE

Peace in our time is achievable. I've privatized peacekeeping successfully with the advent of the Iron Man suit. At least, terrestrially.

We now know we aren't alone. There are forces out there like the Chitauri who have Earth in their crosshairs. We need a stronger line of defense. The Avengers cannot be the first and last line of defense forever. We need a suit of armor around the world. Not just around one person. But a thick candy shell keeping the delicious goo of our planet from melting every time some alien life-form gets a big idea.

Imagine artificial intelligence far smarter and capable than a collective of any humans—one not influenced by emotion, prejudices, or personal beliefs and opinions. Imagine an artificial intelligence with a neural network capable of 300 trillion operations per second. And that's on a bad day.

Dr. Banner and I have developed a solution that has the potential of being a cutting-edge peacekeeping initiative.

The advanced automation required is still in development. JARVIS is close but not capable of the processing required for such an initiative. But when that technological leap is made, we must be ready.
